A little Philly in London? Fontana says yes

XFINITY. Entertainment complex could be located near Bud Gardens

Is XFINITY coming to London? According to Mayor Joe Fontana, a version of the massive dining and entertainment complex located in Philadelphia's Wells Fargo Complex could be on its way.

"We're talking with (Budweiser Gardens parent company) Global Spectrum to bring that here," he said.

Fontana said locations are currently being discussed: The Bud Gardens parking lot, the land the Middlesex-London Health Unit currently occupies at King and Rideout streets, and 95 King St., where the structure that stands there now is about to be torn down.

If it comes to pass, London's XFINITY would be a drawing card for both city residents and many from out of town.

Fontana said the parking lot is being discussed, but he doesn't think the logistics would work there. It is, however, still in the running.

More likely, it would find a home at one of the other two locations.

However it works out — if indeed it does work out — Fontana believes that it would be an unqualified success as a jewel of the Budweiser Gardens expansion he envisions. "It's going to be a place everyone wants to go," he added.

Meanwhile, the mayor said an entertainment tent will be erected at 95 King St., across from the arena, for the upcoming Memorial Cup in May.

There were reports that a large mural would be constructed to esthetically fill the gap after the current structure is demolished, but Fontana said a temporary tent will be in place to host fans May 16-25.

Inside

The attractions inside the Philadelphia complex include The Philly Market-Place, Spectrum Grill, Broad Street Bullies Pub, PBR Bar and Grill, Victory Beer Hall and the NBC Sports Arena.

Budweiser might not be the only beer sign in this prominent part of downtown if Mayor Joe Fontana's hints come true. An XFINITY will see plenty of glasses raised. MIKE DONACHIE/METRO

Londoners warned to stay safe on the tracks

Next week is Public-Rail Safety Week in Canada, and the City of London is sending out a safety message.

In a media release Thursday, staff stressed the dangers of railway crossings and the seriousness of trespassing on railway property.

Each year in Canada, about 250 collisions occur between trains and motor vehicles at road/railway crossings and an average of 90 collisions take place between trains and trespassers.

Roadway crossings can be dangerous when pedestrians ignore warning devices such as flashing lights, gates and signals.

Transportation minister. Chamber of Commerce event to feature Glen Murray

MIKE DONACHIE
mike.donachie@metronews.ca

Ontario's transportation minister is coming to London, and he's got a big announcement to make.

Glen Murray is to speak at a London Chamber of Commerce event on Wednesday, it's been revealed, and the chamber is promising it will be a "special address."

Two weeks ago, Premier Kathleen Wynne made a speech that included a hint about high-speed rail for London. A hint was all she was prepared to give, because the details were never made clear even though London's politicians were thrilled by the very possibility of improved rail services.

Now the chamber has posted an invitation on its website to hear Murray fill in some gaps.

"By now you've heard about Premier Wynne's $29-billion plan to 'Move Ontario Forward,'" said a listing on the chamber of commerce website.

"Now join us for a special address by Ontario's Minister of Transportation as he unveils the government's 10-year plan for transportation and transit across all regions of Ontario and its commitment to bring high-speed rail to London."

Wynne's speech included a reference to "getting started on the frequent high-speed rail service all day long between Toronto, Pearson, Waterloo Region and London."

Among those welcoming it was Mayor Joe Fontana, who said he'd long campaigned for high-speed rail to come to London.

Along with all the other details, the budget's not known. But it will definitely be in the billions. The last time such a scheme was promoted, its minimum price tag was $8 billion.

Hear the announcement

Transportation Minister Glen Murray will speak at a London Chamber of Commerce event on Wednesday, April 30.

- It's at 11:30 a.m. at the Western Fair District. Visit londonchamber.com for ticket details.

Kissel was primed for his major-label debut album through Warner Music Canada, Started With a Song, which was released late last year.

Feds fund effort to keep women, girls safe online

'Deadly, deadly consequences.' London Abused Women's Centre receives over $150,000 to fight cyberbullying

SCOTT TAYLOR

London North Centre MP Susan Truppe, left, and London Abused Women's Centre executive director Megan Walker discuss the federal grant that will allow the Women's Centre to help women and girls stay safe online. SCOTT TAYLOR/METRO

The London Abused Women's Centre has received a grant of $155,542 from the federal government for a two-year project to combat cyberbullying, Internet luring and cyberstalking against women and girls.

The LAWC will work with young women, the police and other community partners to develop strategies and best practices that can be rolled out across the country.

LAWC program manager Saundra-Lynn Coulter said first-person accounts paint a grim picture of technology too often being used to hurt women.

"They tell us it's used all the time to locate, stalk, harass, isolate, intimidate, lure, control, extort and shame them," she said.

London police Chief Brad Duncan said it's well known how tragic and pervasive cyberbullying and the use of social media has become.

"It's serious and it has deadly, deadly consequences," he said. "All too often we've seen in Canada and across the world when individuals become victims of cybercrime, the outcomes are horrible and tragic."

Natasha Falle, who was forced into prostitution and trafficked as a teen before becoming a noted activist for women in the sex trade and founding the organization Sex Trade 101, has been tabbed as the project's co-ordinator.

She's in the process of moving from Toronto to London.

London North Centre MP and parliamentary secretary for the status of women Susan Truppe said everyone has the responsibility to ensure the safety of women.

"How do we do that? We do it by engaging one another and by ensuring that communities have the resources and services they need to protect and serve the women and girls that live here," she said.

Fire chief: More info was needed to properly tackle warehouse fire

Mississauga, Ont.'s fire chief says if crews had known what was inside a burning warehouse where four firefighters were injured, they likely would have approached it differently.

Fire Chief John McDougall says the firefighters were just about to enter the building Wednesday when an explosion happened, leaving three with "blast-related injuries."

One of the men was sent to hospital in critical condition but has since improved to serious but stable, and the other two have been treated for broken bones.

A fourth suffered smoke inhalation and was released from hospital Wednesday. McDougall says the man who was critical had "fairly severe internal injuries" but has stabilized after undergoing surgery.

He says his firefighters had no special information about what was inside the building, which police have since said contained butane lighters and aerosol cans of insect spray.

"If they had had … identified to them what the contents of the building or the potential, they certainly would have approached it differently," McDougall said.

He adds all three who were hurt in the explosion were seriously injured and will have a long recovery period, but there were hopes one of them could be released from hospital on Thursday.

"A fire is always unpredictable," he said. "But when you have an explosion as we've obviously had here, it's a very serious matter."

The Ontario Fire Marshal's office is leading the investigation into the fire, assisted by Mississauga fire officials and Peel regional police. THE CANADIAN PRESS

London firm with the golden touch

Good prospects.
Surprising success in the Forest City

SCOTT TAYLOR
scott.taylor@metronews.ca

A London-based gold mining company carving its way through some thick Nevada rock may just be on to something big.

Montana Gold Mining Company (MGM) president Ted Ellwood laughed when asked if people might be surprised to know that London is home to gold prospectors.

What he's serious about is the Golden Trail Project in the northern region of Nevada that has yielded positive returns in both gold and silver so far.

Ellwood said there are a number of factors that are cause for legitimate optimism.

"We've been working in there since, I think, 2006, right from a grassroots hypothesis that should be another major gold trend," he said.

"So we've been following that for years, identified a pretty significant surface gold vein at the Golden Trail Project, which is our project."

To add fuel to the gold fever, massive Newmount Mining Corp. has bought up all the land surrounding MGM's claim, which is also close to another trend proving to be lucrative.

Ellwood said it's not common for a larger company to make such a move.

"The fact Newmount has surrounded us speaks volumes as far as the strength of the project," he said. "It's very rare that a major ever surrounds a junior. Usually, a junior will try to surround a major so they can beat the drums."

Ellwood comes by his vocation honestly. Born in Manitoba, members on both sides of his family were prospectors. He even has an old newspaper photo of his grandfather prospecting for gold in the 1930s.

The company was based in Toronto for a while, but he happily traded the daily grind there for a slightly quieter life in London.

If MGM does strike it rich in Nevada, he said it's likely one of those giant companies will buy out MGM to take the claim themselves. If that happens, Ellwood said he and his partners would just start another company and start looking for gold all over again.

At a glance

- If Nevada was a country, it would be the fifth-largest gold producer in the world.

Citywide makeover

Businesses asked to help clean up

Is London clean enough yet? Not according to the City of London.

It's calling on businesses to join the ninth annual citywide 20 Minute London Makeover, on Friday at 2 p.m.

Businesses are encouraged to help clean up their properties or nearby public areas. The request is that they give garbage bags to employees, so they can collect litter for 20 minutes outside.

City of London employees will also be out at 2 p.m. at various locations throughout the city.

There's also a competition for people taking part. Everyone sending the city a picture of their team will go into a draw for a free pizza lunch, courtesy of Joe Kool's. Full details are at londoncleangreen.ca. METRO

In its 19th year

Community cleanup set for Saturday

The annual community cleanup — and this is its 19th year — takes place this Saturday at locations across the city.

Volunteers will be picking up garbage and doing their part to beautify London. Designated supply sites will be set up where volunteers can receive information, instructions and get equipped with garbage bags, gloves, T-shirts, and more. People can add their own clean-up location anywhere in the city.

Ontario PCs to take on premier's $2M libel suit

Ontario's Progressive Conservatives served notice Thursday they intend to "vigorously defend themselves'' against a $2-million libel suit filed by Premier Kathleen Wynne, calling it an attempt to muzzle the Opposition.

"We're not backing down," said PC energy critic Lisa MacLeod. "We're going to continue to ask the tough questions."

The suit stems from Opposition Leader Tim Hudak's comments suggesting that Wynne "oversaw and possibly ordered the criminal destruction of documents" related to the $1.1-billion cancellation of two gas plants prior to the 2011 election.

"The public knows what this is; it's an attempt to silence the Opposition, and we're not going to be silenced," said MacLeod, who was named in the libel suit along with Hudak and the PC Ontario Fund.

"There is a lot of support for Tim and I because we're asking the tough questions, trying to get to a billion-dollar scandal and why that happened.''

Lawyers for the Tories filed a notice of intent to defend in the libel suit, saying the Conservatives don't believe any of their comments "constitute actionable defamation" of Wynne.

"All of the statements about which your client complains are clearly within the recognized privileges protecting freedom of speech, particularly where it concerns matters of public importance within a necessary and vital public debate,'' wrote Robert Rueter of Lerners LLP on behalf of the Conservatives.

Wynne claimed in an open letter March 30 that Hudak knew his accusations about her alleged involvement in the wiping of computer hard drives were false and not supported by evidence, and demanded he apologize and retract the comments.

But the Tory notice of intent to defend said it was Wynne's "deliberate release" of her open letter that "attracted and intensified media coverage" of the very statements about which she is complaining in her libel suit.

How to build your company's team spirit, brick by brick

Lego Guys. Meet the man with more than two million pieces of fun

MIKE DONACHIE
mike.donachie@metronews.ca

Rick Keane wears slippers around the house. He never takes them off. With more than two million Lego bricks around, it's just not worth the risk.

Keane is the man behind the Lego Guys, a business built firmly on plastic foundations. It's a classic example of an enthusiast turning his hobby into a job, with the Lego Guys officially becoming a company just weeks ago, although Keane's been testing the waters, with corporate events and children's parties, for months.

He's spent 12 years collecting Lego sets. Asked how many he buys, he replies: "All of them."

You can join in, too, at a party or a corporate event.

"We say, invite us over to play Lego sometime, but check with your mom first," he said. "We teach people how to be kids, how to share, how to understand each other. We teach people how to go with it, and have fun."

In Keane's home near St. Thomas, there's a room full of Lego. You name it and it's there: Harry Potter, Star Wars, Toy Story. He's got the lot, including 716 carefully organized sets, all put away on storage bins and special drawers so they can be accessed easily, assembled quickly and displayed to clients.

Don't forget the 3,143 Minifigs. The collectable figures are part of the bewildering, colourful displays filling every shelf. Then there's the storage facility where the overspill is kept. For many of the most popular sets, Keane has a second or third example, plus spare parts, plus lots of loose bricks of every possible description, from the latest pieces to some of the earliest examples. He even has a specially modified dishwasher to keep the collection clean.

And he wants to share it. The Lego Guys, which includes two employees, will come to your business and challenge the staff with engineering or creative tasks designed to get them working together.

"We forget the whole 'being there' zone when we're adults," Keane said. "When we're kids, we completely get into what we're doing and when we're not kids anymore we forget how to do that.

"To build a team is so easy. They play Lego together and they just start to talk and the ideas start to flow."

Here's a good idea: Wear slippers, and watch your step.

- As well as corporate events, the company offers children's parties, and displays from more than 50 years of Lego history, courtesy of its "mobile museum."
- The Lego Guys' next big event is on June 15, Father's Day, at Storybook Gardens. There will be games, challenges and displays.
- Rick Keane buys Lego, too. He's always looking for more and never sells any.

Re-learning to live in the moment

"We forget the whole 'being there' zone when we're adults.... When we're kids, we completely get into what we're doing and when we're not kids anymore we forget how to do that."

Rick Keane of the Lego Guys, which will come to your business and challenge the staff with engineering or creative tasks designed to get them working together.

Tiny tastes of Rick Keane's huge Lego collection

1 The set with no name

Keane proudly shows off the 290-piece "building toy" that's the only Lego set produced without a classification number. It was withdrawn after the mistake was noticed.

The rare collectible was made by Samsonite, in Strathroy, Ont., in 1976, under licence.

2 Yes, Han shot first

One of the rarest Star Wars items is Lego set 4501, the Mos Eisley Cantina as depicted in the first movie, Star Wars Episode IV: A New Hope.

It's the only set from that period that includes the character Greedo, who was killed by Han Solo in the movie.

3 Build yourself a home

Here's an unusual one: ready-built Lego furniture.

Back in 1978, the company produced sinks, dressers, fridges and other items of furniture that included opening doors, in sets 230 (Salon Colette) and 232 (Bungalow).

4 Special delivery

Those annoying stickers always peel off Lego sets quickly, don't they?

That means some of the most sought-after bricks are the ones with text or logos printed on them directly, like the Canada Post truck that's in Rick Keane's collection.

5 Inventing the wheel

Lego began as just another toy company, but started manufacturing plastic parts in the 1950s as a way of attaching wheels to metal cars.

The famous brick was patented in 1958, and Rick Keane does have examples from that year.

6 A colourful history

Take a careful look at Lego bricks down the years and you'll see subtle differences, says Keane. As new ranges have been released, one change has been the colours.

The hues apparent on a vintage brick will be noticeably different from modern-day Lego.

Garbage-to-energy plant ordered to stop burning medical waste

Aborted fetuses. Order comes after learning waste from B.C. may contain human tissue

An Oregon county commission has ordered an incinerator to stop accepting boxed medical waste to generate electricity after learning the waste it's been burning may include tissue from aborted fetuses from British Columbia.

Sam Brentano, chairman of the Marion County board of commissioners, said late Wednesday the board is taking immediate action to prohibit human tissue from future deliveries at the plant that has been turning waste into energy since 1987.

"We provide an important service to the people of this state and it would be a travesty if this program is jeopardized due to this finding," he said in a statement. "We thought our ordinance excluded this type of material at the waste-to-energy facility. We will take immediate action to ensure a process is developed to prohibit human tissue from future deliveries."

Kristy Anderson, a British Columbia Health Ministry spokeswoman, told The Associated Press that regional health authorities there have a contract with a company that sends biomedical waste, such as fetal tissue, cancerous tissue and amputated limbs, to Oregon, where it's incinerated in the waste-energy plant.

Small percentage

Marion County estimates that the facility processes 635 tonnes of in-county medical waste each year and about 1,100 tonnes from elsewhere, making it a small percentage of the total waste burned.

The B.C. Catholic, a Vancouver-based newspaper, identified the plant as Covanta Marion, based in Brooks, Ore. When contacted by The Associated Press on Wednesday, a Covanta Marion representative said he did not know if fetal tissue was included in shipments from Canada or elsewhere.

The facility is owned and operated by Covanta in a partnership with Marion County. According to its website, it processes about 500 tonnes per day of municipal solid waste, generating up to 13 megawatts of energy sold to Portland General Electric.

County spokeswoman Jolene Kelley said medical waste has been included in the program for some time, but the commissioners never had any indication that fetal tissue might be included. "We learned that today," she said.

Commissioners did not say why they believe medical waste shipped to the plant should be free of fetal tissue.

Yellow ribbons a symbol of hope for return of passengers

A female relative of a passenger aboard the sunken ferry Sewol is consoled by her husband as yellow ribbons are displayed as a sign of hope for the safe return of missing passengers at a port in Jindo, South Korea, Thursday. Divers made their way deeper into the submerged wreck of a ferry that sank more than a week ago as the death toll neared 160 and relatives of the more than 140 still missing pressed the government to finish the grim task of recovery soon. China plans to revoke news agency's licences

China's official news agency says authorities plan to revoke two crucial publication licences for web giant Sina.com because pornographic content was found on its sites.

Xinhua News Agency says the penalty might partially ban the web giant's operations.

Sina apologized Thursday evening for "the suspected problem" of pornographic content on its literature and video sites. It says in a statement on its website that it feels "sorry and ashamed" for lax monitoring and that it has moved quickly to rectify the problem.

Tiny Pacific nation sues world's nine nuclear powers

The tiny Pacific nation of the Marshall Islands is taking on the U.S. and the world's eight other nuclear-armed nations with a lawsuit demanding that they meet their obligations toward disarmament and accusing them of "flagrant violations" of international law.

The island group that was used for dozens of U.S. nuclear tests after the Second World War filed suit Thursday against each of the nine countries in the International Court of Justice in The Hague, Netherlands. It claims the countries are modernizing their arsenals instead of negotiating disarmament.

Stowaway. U.S. teen who survived flight said to be homesick for Africa

A security video shows the boy who survived stowing away on a jetliner dangling his feet from the aircraft's wheel well after arriving in Hawaii, before jumping three metres to the ground and collapsing, an airport official says.

The 15-year-old, who defied the odds by living through the freezing, low-pressure conditions in the jetliner's wheel well as it flew from California to Hawaii, was disoriented and thirsty after Sunday's ordeal, Maui District Airport manager Marvin Moniz said.

Staggering toward the nose of the plane, the soft-spoken boy in a San Francisco Giants hoodie asked a ramp agent for a drink of water, setting in motion federal and local law enforcement investigations, national calls for better airport security and a flurry of speculation about how anyone could survive such a perilous trip.

Abdilahi Yusuf Abdi, who said he is the boy's father, told Voice of America Wednesday that his son — who is still hospitalized in Honolulu — missed Africa, where they used to live, and had been struggling in school.

Evading security

The boy told officials he evaded what was supposed to be a multi-layered airport security system in San Jose by climbing a fence.

After the boy was discovered in Maui, FBI and Transportation Security Administration investigators questioned him and fed him teriyaki meatballs and rice from an airport restaurant. The teen, whose name has not been released, said he had been in an argument at home, went to the airport, and got onto the first plane he came to.

Harper & Co. frame Fair Elections Act as Ottawa elite vs. average Joe

Wedge issue. Minister says much-maligned bill is favoured by 'everyday Canadians'

What's a government to do when a litany of parliamentary watchdogs, academics, aboriginal leaders, editorialists and opposition politicians say your legislation stinks?

If you're Stephen Harper's Conservatives, you seize the opportunity to make the debate over the Fair Elections Act into a political wedge issue — average Canadians versus the Ottawa elites.

Pierre Poilievre, the minister of state for democratic reform, spelled this out Thursday in a luncheon speech in Ottawa, borrowing a favourite phrase from former Ontario Conservative premier Mike Harris — "common sense" — to draw a line between ordinary folks and the out-of-touch political class.

"Away from the noise around political Ottawa, everyone understands that this is common sense," Poilievre said.

"We're just finishing two weeks away from Parliament. Out in our communities, it has been refreshing to be reminded of the massive gulf between those in the political bubble and everyday Canadians on the ground."

For Poilievre, part of developing that us-versus-them frame on the debate has been to suggest there is only one real point of contention: the government's plan to eliminate vouching.

But that has not been the only criticism of the bill.

There have also been complaints about the limitations placed on the chief electoral officer's ability to communicate publicly. A major loophole would allow parties to solicit previous donors as much as they want during a campaign without declaring it an election expense. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Robocall investigation turns up no evidence

A three-year investigation into allegations of fraudulent robocalls during the last federal election has found no evidence of intent to deceive voters, nor any evidence of an orchestrated scheme beyond Guelph, Ont.

A long-awaited report from commissioner of elections Yves Cote will come as vindication for the Conservative party, which has faced a cloud of suspicion for years over widespread reports of non-party supporters being directed to the wrong polling stations in the final days and hours of the hard-fought vote on May 2, 2011.

"Having carefully examined all of the evidence, the commissioner found no reasonable grounds to believe that an offence under the (Elections) Act has been committed," Cote's 32-page report, posted Thursday, flatly asserts.

The conclusion is supported by an independent review by Louise Charron, a former Supreme Court justice who was paid by Elections Canada for her expert opinion.

Minister of State Pierre Poilievre is seen after speaking to the Economic Club of Canada Thursday in Ottawa. ADRIAN WYLD/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pierre Poilievre, the minister of state for democratic reform, said the report proves the Conservative party ran "an honest and ethical campaign" in 2011.

"We followed all of the rules and we won fair and square," Poilievre said Thursday.

Cote's investigation is separate from robocall allegations during the same election in Guelph, where a young Conservative campaign staffer, Michael Sona, faces Elections Act charges for his alleged role in calls that impersonated Elections Canada.

Despite tens of thousands of citizen complaints after media reports surfaced regarding the investigation in 2012, the commissioner said it all boiled down to 1,726 complainants in 261 electoral districts.

"Overall, no discernible pattern of misdirection, such as a predominant calling number or constellation of predominant calling numbers, was noted that would suggest a potential breach of the Act," the report says.

That is not to say some citizens weren't sent to the wrong polling stations.

Cote castigates the Conservative party for going ahead with calls to electors informing them of their polling station after Elections Canada had expressly told all parties not to do so. THE CANADIAN PRESS

No more lazy dog-day afternoons for man's best friend with Whistle

Is your pooch getting a pooch? A new activity tracker for Fido can help pet parents know if their precious pups aren't getting enough exercise

Bad news for lazy dogs: A new device, called Whistle, lets pet owners track how much exercise — or sleep — their four-legged friends are getting.

Whistle is similar to popular activity trackers designed for humans. It wraps around a dog's collar and syncs with a smartphone app, collecting data on how much activity and rest the pet had.

We tried it out on a dog, who would much rather sleep under the couch than chase a ball. It's no surprise to find out that the pup wasn't getting at least 30 minutes of movement a day.

Whistle pushes owners to take their dogs out on more walks for longer periods.

At $129 US, it is as pricey as some of the latest human fitness trackers from the likes of FitBit and Jawbone.

One major difference: Whistle syncs data to its app through Wi-Fi, as well as Bluetooth. That lets you check up on your dogs without being near them, so you can track how much exercise your dog is getting when left with dog walkers, a doggy day care or family and friends.

The Whistle app, available for Apple and Android smartphones, is nicely designed. Multiple people can download the app and see the same data through the same account, which is great if others help care for your dog.

While this dog is clearly in fabulous shape, the Whistle activity tracker he is wearing can help his owner see if he is getting enough activity. WHISTLE LABS INC./THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Whistle looks slick. It is round and is made of stainless steel. It weighs less than an ounce. It is about 1.5 inches wide and less than half-an-inch thick.

The device locks on to a rubber strap that is then wrapped around the dog collar to help it stay in place.

Because it is waterproof, dogs can take the Whistle with them for a swim, the company says. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dog spy games

The app lists how much rest and activity the dog gets in a day. You can also add what the dog ate, what medication you gave it and any additional notes or photos you want.

- The app looks like a Facebook timeline. You can scroll down to see what the dog has done during the day. You can also swipe the screen from left to right to see what the dog did on past days.

'Net neutrality'. U.S. to propose pay-for-priority Internet access rules

The Federal Communications Commission in the U.S. is set to propose new Internet rules that would allow Internet service providers to charge content companies for faster delivery of their services over the so-called "last mile" connection to people's homes.

The agency also proposes to enhance government oversight of such deals to ensure that they don't harm competition or limit free speech, according to a senior FCC official familiar with the matter.

FCC Chairman Tom Wheeler was scheduled to present the proposed rules to the agency's four other commissioners on Thursday.

MIDDLE CLASS SOARS, AIRLINE TUMBLES

It's time for The List, Metro's unerring guide to what's hot this week.

1 The Canadian middle class. Really? Yep, it's all the buzz around Timmy Hos. No less an authority than The New York Times says Canada's middle class has passed the U.S. as having the highest after-tax middle-class incomes in the world. Booyah! Too bad for Justin Trudeau, who has based his entire platform on the collapse of the middle class. Right idea, wrong country, maybe.

2 Twit trending on Twitter. Remember the name Cliven Bundy, as it is now synonymous with the last gasp of unreconstructed racism in America. This bad old boy — and until recently a Tea Party hero — has been caught on camera airing his views on "the Negro." "They abort their young children; they put young men in jail, because they never learned how to pick cotton." Oh, and "I've often wondered, are they better off as slaves ..." Rancher Bundy was a right-wing poster boy for defying the U.S. government over grazing rights, but those howls are coming from former supporters breaking their ankles after leaping off the bandwagon.

3 Tyler Oakley, born again. With more than 137 million views and 4 million subscribers, LGBT advocate Tyler Oakley is a giant of the Internet. But in the words of his mom Jackie, he was once seven pounds and 12 ounces ... exactly 24 years ago to be precise. In his latest video, Tyler and his mom resurrect a VHS tape of his birth and watch the blessed event together. It's the first time Tyler's seen it and his reactions ("I look like a baby zombie gremlin!") are more fun than the actual event.

4 Air Canada has a bad, bad week. Not only were Air Canada baggage handlers caught casually tossing bags six or seven metres from the door of a plane into a bin below, a new survey shows that Air Canada has the second rudest flight attendants of any airline in North America, just behind Spite, er, Spirit. The best were Southwest and Alaska. In the interest of fairness, Air Canada was voted the best international airline in North America in 2011, but really, what has it done for us lately?

5 Jodi Foster has a good week. She marries Alexandra Hedison, photographer, actor (The L Word) and Ellen DeGeneres's ex-girlfriend. Hollywood. Such a small town.

6 Triumph of the underdog. Snatching victory from the jaws of defeat, the Montreal Canadiens may be the only Canadian team to make the NHL playoffs, but after sweeping the Tampa Bay Lightning in the first round, they may be more than enough to keep Canadian hearts glowing. At the same time, American Meb Keflezighi wins the Boston marathon, the first American man to do so since 1983. Meb was born in Eritrea, land of marathoners, but he's been in the U.S. since 1987, so during a year when Americans desperately wanted their legendary race back on an, um, secure footing, his victory counts as one for Team USA.

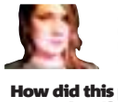
Metalheads have soft spot for cats

It's hard to imagine metal musicians being especially affectionate. But beneath the darkness is a softer side as photographer Alexandra Crockett reveals in her book Metal Cats. Her images capture hard-core metalheads as they pose with their felines. METRO

Q and A

Just a silly idea



ALEXANDRA CROCKETT
Photographer, 30, based in Oakland, Calif.

How did this photo series come about?
I texted about 30 of my metalhead male friends who I knew had cats. I said, 'Hey, if I did this kind of, like, silly weird idea, what would you think about that?' And they were all like, 'Oh my God, I really want to!' The project took me four years as I travelled along the West Coast.

If there's one thing illicit leaps from Whistler gondolas and some of America's tallest buildings teaches you, it's that it's hard to keep a good BASE jumper down. But the idea of sneaking to the peak of Dubai's Burj Khalifa, the world's tallest building, is likely a leap too far.

So what's the plan for hopefuls wanting to drop from the uppermost height of human construction? There's not really much you can do but bide your time and keep your fingers crossed for an invite. That seemed to work out just fine for champion jumpers Vince Reffet and Fred Fugen. (Via Skydive Dubai)

What women don't want

Reel Guys

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN

Leslie Mann, Cameron Diaz and Kate Upton are three women wronged in The Other Woman, which opens this weekend. CONTRIBUTED

Synopsis

Married man Mark King (Game of Thrones's Nikolaj Coster-Waldau) tries to push infidelity to Tiger Woodsian heights by cheating on his wife (Leslie Mann) with multiple mistresses, including Carly and Amber (Cameron Diaz and Kate Upton). "We got played by the same guy," says Carly. The three women form an unlikely friendship, drowning their sorrows in a sea of tequila shots before hatching a plan to humiliate and financially ruin the three timer.

The Other Woman. Revenge comedy falls to tired stereotypes on how women view men, but at least the outfits are chic

Richard: Mark, with The Notebook, director Nick Cassavetes made one of the most romantic movies of recent years. With The Other Woman, his pendulum has swung in the opposite direction. This is an anti-romance flick about sex, lies and adultery but it's ripe with laughs and some fun performances. Mann goes all in as a Lucille Ball-on-the-verge-of-a-nervous-breakdown type, Diaz has great comic timing, and even Kate Upton, who will never be accused of giving Meryl Streep a run for her money, is charming and funny. It's not Bridemaids funny, but I laughed out loud quite a few times. You?

Mark: Is it possible to like a movie but hate its sexual politics? Because that's how I felt about it. I laughed, especially when Leslie Mann was onscreen. This movie is certainly her personal best. She's amazingly loose and funny, especially in the first third of the film. But the revenge plot against the cheating husband left me feeling queasy. He's set up as such a cardboard lothario that he made the Kate Upton character look deep. There's a positive male role model in the film, Mann's brother, but he's so anodyne and threatless that I couldn't take him seriously as a character. The movie is interesting as a series of Rorschach tests about how women must view men — either cads or eunuchs — but I had to banish these thoughts or I couldn't enjoy the comedy.

RC: I see what you're saying, and I suppose the film is a bit mean-spirited and not terribly subtle in its examination of the dynamics between men and women, but it does get the girl power stuff right, and I think that's more the point of the film. This isn't a movie about the men; they are simply the McGuffins that forward the plot. This is a movie about female bonding rather than female blaming.

MB: Anyway, at least it's a good-looking movie, and the women's outfits are chic. Don Johnson is given a part that's more than a cameo, but less than a role. I think he could have been onscreen more with a beefed-up part. But Nicki Minaj, as Diaz' assistant, steals every scene she's in. I thought she was a hoot. Richard, did the soundtrack bother you? Such obvious choices, like New York, New York when the husband enters the city, or the Mission: Impossible theme when the three women tail the husband to find out what he's up to.

RC: Absolutely. The soundtrack is as subtle as Coster-Waldau's cheesy pick-up lines. Five minutes in, I was willing to bet Girls Just Wanna Have Fun would play … and I would have won that bet.

MB: And I bet the women will cheer and the men will groan at this flick.

In a dystopian Detroit, abandoned brick mansions left from better times now house only the most dangerous criminals. Unable to control the crime, the police constructed a colossal containment wall around this area to protect the rest of the city. National Canadian Film Day. Homegrown cinema lovers have plenty to choose from on April 29

scene@metronews.ca

Bon Cop, Bad Cop is one of the films on offer on April 29. CONTRIBUTED

"For the past nine years, Reel Canada has been introducing young people and new Canadians to great Canadian films and the response has been overwhelmingly positive," says Jack Blum, executive director of Reel Canada.

This year on Tuesday, April 29, the Can-con boosters are kicking their outreach up a notch with the establishment of National Canadian Film Day.

"We thought it would be great for one day a year to extend that invitation to all Canadians," Blum says. "We just believe that if we can overcome the 'awareness' barrier created by the huge promotional budgets Hollywood commands for its product, that people will embrace our fantastic legacy of great cinema."

To help celebrate the inaugural National Canadian Film Day, Cineplex has donated screens to show a variety of homegrown films, including the festival hit C.R.A.Z.Y. and Paul Gross's Passchendaele. The Reel Canada website boasts that great Canadian films will be "available in more communities on a single day than ever before in our nation's history."

"There are screenings happening all over the country," says Blum, "literally in every province and territory as well as online and on TV. Of course, if you're in Toronto, the place to be is the Royal on College, where Bruce McDonald and Don McKellar will be presenting Highway 61 and Last Night."

Blum waves the flag when discussing the importance of exposure to Canadian films. "Canadian movies reflect Canadian experience. Period. When people see themselves and their world depicted on screen it gives them a stronger sense of where they live and what community or communities they belong to."

The sequel to The Amazing Spider-Man is gaining a lot of buzz for its bounty of baddies, and with more than 50 years of pulp-fiction history, the comic-book character certainly has many to choose from. At Metro, we only feel it's our responsibility to inform the public of the upcoming blockbuster's nefarious criminals.

The villains of Spider-Man

Green Goblin

Alias: The Goblin, Harry Osborn

Played by: Dane DeHaan

The folklore: The genetically ill heir to unethical Oscorp Industries, Harry Osborn seeks vengeance on Spidey after the webslinger refuses a potentially life-altering blood transfusion. In the Marvel universe, after taking a formula, Osborn gets enhanced strength and equips himself with a "goblin glider," exploding pumpkin bombs and, consequently, a pretty knockout Halloween costume.

First comic book appearance: 1965 (Amazing Spider-Man #31)

Electro

Alias: Maxwell Dillon

Played by: Jamie Foxx

The Folklore: An electrical engineer that accidentally gains mutagenic powers that enables him to capacitate electricity (and then shoot it from his fingertips, naturally), Electro turns from a shy, introverted Spider-Man fan to power-hungry vengeance seeker who unites with the Green Goblin in order to gain fame.

First comic book appearance: 1964 (Amazing Spider-Man #9)

The Rhino

Alias: "Hornhead", Aleksei Sytsevich

Played by: Paul Giamatti

The Folklore: The Rhino may historically be a Russian thug that participated in an experiment that bonded his skin to be hard as nails but in this film, he teams up with Goblin and gets outfitted with a heavily-armoured suit that enables him to become a raging, machine gun-toting maniac of destruction.

First comic book appearance: 1966 (Amazing Spider-Man #41)

Nothing but bad guys

Producer Avi Arad has announced The Amazing Spider-Man franchise will spin off a movie featuring Spidey's villains called The Sinister Six. Here's a peek at who may (or may not) make up the other three mischief-makers:

Vulture – An electromagnetic tailored body harness allows this legendary Spider-Man crook great strength and the ability to fly despite his deceptively mature age. Suggested casting: Larry David

Kraven the Hunter – A maniacal Russian hunter with superhuman strength, Kraven wants to defeat Spider-Man to prove he's the greatest gamesman in the world. Suggested casting: Phil Robertson from Duck Dynasty

Mysterio – According to folklore, this creepy illusionist isn't much more than a frustrated failed magician with some sort of goldfish bowl over his head. Suggested casting: Music performer deadmau5

Daily Show's Bugle boy boogies to HBO

John Oliver. Stint as Daily Show guest host provided springboard to comedian's new topical comedy series

John Oliver will host Last Week Tonight with John Oliver Sundays at 11 p.m. EDT on HBO. HBO

When the time comes for a young bird to leave the nest, he's often more than ready to go and doesn't care too much what Papa Bird thinks.

The analogy doesn't apply to John Oliver, the former Daily Show featured player who debuts his new HBO topical series Sunday at 11 p.m. EDT. He's extremely loyal to Jon Stewart, recognizes Stewart's role in giving him the opportunity to get ahead, and sought the Comedy Central host's blessing to move to HBO.

"I have a pretty intense debt to him," said Oliver, whose show is called Last Week Tonight. "I wouldn't be doing this if it wasn't for him."

Oliver, a native of Britain who was always interested in topical comedy, admired Stewart's show from afar and in 2006 applied for and earned a job on the Daily Show. His path to HBO began last year, when Stewart called and said he was taking the summer off to produce a movie. Would Oliver mind filling in as guest host for a couple of months?

He hung up and his legs went weak. Oliver's wife didn't help much when he recounted the conversation and she said, "Oh, that's risky."

She was right. But her husband nailed it, keeping a formidable machine running smoothly and establishing a comic personality of his own: More bemused and less neurotic or angry than Stewart.

Oliver said he really didn't have a sense of how well it was going until Charlie Rose was a guest toward the end of his tenure. The CBS newsman said the audience had loved him. Had he thought about his next step?

"That was the first time I'd heard that," Oliver said. "He looked at me like I was a complete moron. My only barometer for going well was Jon not being mad at me when he came back."

His phone offered more clues. Offers for work started coming in. It was Oliver's moment of opportunity, and both he and Stewart recognized it. HBO offered prestige and creative freedom to build a show as he saw fit, so Oliver signed on.

It's hard to describe something that hasn't been on the air yet, but Last Week Tonight seems to be an apt title. Oliver will give a comedic take on stories in the news. It sounds similar to the Daily Show, but he realizes his challenge will be to take on topics that Stewart and Colbert haven't already done, along with not making the telecast seem dated by the time it goes on the air.

Another challenge — again, one that may become moot once Last Week Tonight is up and operating — is for Oliver not to let his respect for Stewart and the Daily Show to lead him into making a program that feels like a pale imitation.

"John Oliver does bring something kind of different," said Jonathan Gray, a media and cultural studies professor at the University of Wisconsin in Madison. "The Daily Show is primarily about American politics and so much about John Oliver's shtick reminds you that he's not an American. It's not the insider humour of Stewart. It's more of an outsider's observations. Sometimes they may look similar, but I think it can allow for a different kind of comic sensibility."

Oliver, 37, is clearly aware of how dangerous it can be for an outsider to make jokes about Americans. He defuses any worries with a self-deprecatory attitude.

"I clearly love it here," he said, "because I live here out of choice. You can't really talk about anything that America has done without acknowledging that Britain had already done it much worse hundreds of years ago."

Stewart as kingmaker

Jon Stewart's role as a comedy kingmaker has never been more clear than this month, with Oliver starting the new show and another ex-Daily Show correspondent, Stephen Colbert, earning the coveted honour of succeeding David Letterman when the Late Show host retires next year.

First, their name is pronounced Japanese Girls. Second, they're not from Japan; they're from Vancouver. And finally, there's not a single female among the four members. Are we clear?

Perfectly Sane/ The Mohrs

A heavy-hitting rock band with members hailing from Winnipeg, managed and mentored by Hawksley Workman. If you like grunge and '80s rock, this will work fine.

The challenge is to keep your motocross bike balanced as it hurtles through a series of ludicrous obstacle courses that may start off with cries of exhilaration but soon transition into comical wails of defeat as you crumble into a neck-breaking demise. Dying repeatedly may sound boring, but simple controls and an inventive use of fountains, aerial tracks, and teeter-totter devices keep it interesting. Casual users, unfortunately, are too quickly left behind when air grabs are added as the difficulty skyrockets, becoming a diversion for hardcore gamers only.

Is Clooney Wynning this feud?

George Clooney didn't have the best time dining with hotel and casino developer Steve Wynn during a visit to Las Vegas recently. The actor reportedly stormed out of a dinner with Wynn and a few associates after an argument over the Affordable Care Act, though each party has their own version of events.

"When he's drinking, he considers himself a close, personal buddy of the president," Wynn tells the Las Vegas Review-Journal. "He got up and said, 'I don't have to listen to this f—ing stuff.' The only person who got excited at the table was George, and he ran off to another bar. Clooney's fun to be with when he's sober. If you have a chance to drink with him, you want to get there early, and don't stay late." Clooney, for his part, sent a statement via his publicist: "I said the president was my longtime friend, and then he said, 'Your friend is an a—hole,'" Clooney says."At that point I told Steve that he was an a—hole and I wasn't going to sit at his table while he was being such a jackass. And I walked out. There were obviously quite a few more adjectives and adverbs used by both of us."

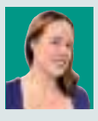
Oprah's vengeful ex-stepmother dishes on star



THE WORD
Dorothy Robinson
scene@metronews.ca

Oprah's ex-stepmother, Barbara Winfrey, wants revenge. After she divorced Oprah's father Vernon, Oprah pushed Barbara out of the house where she lived with Vernon and which Oprah owned. Now Barbara is retaliating by dishing all in a Daily Mail interview. Here are the best bits:

1. She claims she has never seen Oprah and her long-term boyfriend, Stedman Graham, kiss, hold hands or seem romantic.

2. "If it's not more than friendship, they're giving every appearance that it is," she said about the close friendship of Oprah and Gayle King.

3. Oprah is obsessed with skin colour. "It's a real thing for her. It's one of the things she liked about Stedman. He has what we call 'high yellow' skin and soft hair … she liked that."

4. Oprah forces everyone to sign a confidentiality agreement. "Once you're in Oprah's world, she owns you," she noted.

5. There are rumours that Vernon is not Winfrey's biological father. Barbara claims he wanted to do the DNA test but Oprah refused. "She knows it would prove he IS her father. She can't quite believe that such a silly man could make such a magnificent creature," she said.

With so many unique grape varieties growing around the world, you could drink a wine made from a different one every day for the rest of your life and never come close to saying you tasted them all.

I recently tried a Turkish wine made from Öküzgözü: a piece of fruit native to Turkey's Elazığ province. I hadn't had it before and love that after decades of walking the wine beat, I still find new-to-me juice.

Of course you don't have to go that far afield to try something other than merlot and chardonnay. There are plenty of mainstream countries producing wines from lesser known grapes.

Puglia, the heel of Italy's boot, has almost exclusive rights to Negroamaro — a brooding berry that delivers well above its typically inexpensive price point.

The 2012 Mezzomondo Negroamaro IGT ($8.95 - $11.99) is majorly aromatic with dark berry fruit flavours and the grape's classic light bitter finish, which makes it a perfect partner for meaty tomato sauces and weekend barbecues. PRICES REFLECT THE RANGE ACROSS THE COUNTRY. Bacon and Egg Pie: Bake a different type of pastry tonight

THE FREE RANGE COOK
Annabel Langbein

1. Preheat oven to 200 C. Place a flat baking tray in the oven to heat — pie will sit on this and the heat will help it to crisp.

2. Cut a piece of baking paper to fit a 40 x 30 cm baking dish or roasting pan. It should cover the base and reach about 3-4 cm up the sides. Remove the baking paper from the baking dish or roasting pan and lay it flat on your bench. Dust it with a little flour and lay 2 pastry sheets on top. Join the pastry sheets by pressing them together firmly with a small overlap. Roll out the pastry to cover the paper. Lift the paper with the pastry and lay it into the baking dish or roasting pan (it will reach 3-4 cm up the sides).

3. Sprinkle the bacon over the pastry. Top with the sliced potato and sprinkle with the herbs. Break 8 whole eggs over the top.

4. In a mixing bowl, lightly whisk the remaining 6 eggs with the milk, salt and pepper. Pour this evenly over the whole eggs.

5. Roll out the remaining sheet of pastry very thinly and cut it into narrow strips. Arrange the strips in a lattice pattern on top of the pie, trimming off any excess.

6. Place the prepared pie on top of the heated baking tray and bake for 12-15 minutes until the pastry is starting to puff and turn golden. Reduce the heat to 180 C and bake until the pastry is golden and cooked through on the base — about a further 35-40 minutes.

7. Serve warm or at room temperature with a salad and pickles or chutney. It will keep in a covered container in the fridge for 2-3 days.

Ingredients

- 3 sheets (450 g) ready-rolled savoury shortcrust pastry
- 250 g streaky bacon, cut into 2 cm pieces
- 2 medium potatoes, peeled, cooked and thinly sliced
- 3 tbsp soft herbs such as parsley, basil, chives or spring onion tops, chopped
- 14 eggs
- 3/4 cup milk
- 1 tsp salt
- ground black pepper

Konecny's goal puts Canada in semifinal

Canada is off to the semi-final round at the world under-18 hockey championship, thanks to Travis Konecny, from Clachan, Ont.

Konecny, who plays for the Ottawa 67s, scored the third-period goal that earned Canada a 3-2 quarter-final victory over Switzerland on Thursday. He scored with 30 seconds remaining in regulation after Switzerland had tied it earlier in the period.

Switzerland pulled goalie Gauthier Descloux for the extra attacker afterwards but couldn't beat Canadian netminder Mason McDonald to force overtime.

Canada, which finished the preliminary round atop Group A, faces the Czech Republic in the semifinals Saturday in Lappeenranta, Finland. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Mason returns to start in Flyers' net

Back from injury. Philadelphia goalie keen on first career playoff win

Steve Mason of the Philadelphia Flyers makes a save at the Wells Fargo Center on April 3, in Philadelphia, Pa. Having missed the three first playoff games, Mason returns for Game 4 on Friday. BRUCE BENNETT/GETTY IMAGES

A tag-team goalie tandem helped the Philadelphia Flyers reach the Stanley Cup Finals four years ago. They hope it gets them through the first round this spring.

Former London Knight Steve Mason will start Friday night when the Flyers host the New York Rangers in Game 4 of their first-round playoff series Friday night. The Rangers lead the best-of-seven Eastern Conference series 2-1.

Ray Emery started the first three games for Mason, who sustained an upper-body injury on April 12. Mason played the final 7:15 in a 4-1 loss Tuesday night, stopping all three shots he faced.

"I felt really sharp, especially on the power play stuff there," Mason said after Thursday's practice.

The Flyers rode the combination of Brian Boucher and Michael Leighton to the finals in 2010 before losing to Chicago in six games. Boucher started the first 10 games, but was replaced by Leighton after getting injured during Philadelphia's comeback from a 3-0 series deficit against Boston in the second round. Boucher and Leighton played against the Blackhawks.

"I know they were going through different injuries, but I don't know if guys were playing up to par," Mason said, referring to the 2010 tandem. "We don't really focus on what's happened in the past."

Mason hasn't started a playoff game in five years since his rookie season with Columbus. The Blue Jackets were swept by Detroit in that series, so Mason is still looking for his first playoff win.

He could help the Flyers with more than just his performance in goal. Mason is a skilled stickhandler and he can get the offence going on breakouts.

"You look at ways that you can help out your defencemen," he said.

NBA playoffs. Coach, teammates confident DeMar DeRozan can rise to the occasion

After a wobbly playoff debut, Raptors star DeMar DeRozan returned to attack mode for Game 2 against the Brooklyn Nets.

The 24-year-old Toronto guard had just 14 points in Game 1, with eight of those coming from the free throw line, in a 94-87 loss to visiting Brooklyn that saw DeRozan miss 10 of 13 shots.

On Tuesday, a different DeRozan took the court. As he approached the Nets basket, it was as if his brain was in overdrive as it diagrammed possible plays. The possibilities seemed endless: dish off to a teammate, drive to the basket, pull back and take a shot.

The Raptors will need more of the same Friday when the series switches to Brooklyn's Barclays Center for Game 3.

While Toronto preaches a team approach, the Raptors know good things happen when DeRozan is rolling.

"I was just trying to feed him," Toronto guard Greivis Vasquez said of Game 2. "I was just trying to get him the ball — it was just, 'Go, go. We need you to get confidence."'

Mission accomplished.

DeRozan finished with 30 points, 17 of which came in the fourth quarter when he made four of five shots and nine of 11 free throws. He finished the game with five fouls, hanging his head at one point at the end of the bench while his teammates huddled during a timeout.

But he was on point when he returned to action in the 100-95 win.

DeRozan's fourth-quarter output was just two points off the club playoff record of 19, set in 2001 by Vince Carter against Philadelphia. Again and again, DeRozan answered the veteran Nets as they tried to claw their way back.

For coach Dwane Casey, DeRozan showed his maturity by taking the shots the defence was giving him rather than trying to force things.

"He's growing," said Casey. "He's still not a finished product. We've just seen the beginning of a guy becoming a star."

Diehard fans

T-Dot fans in the B.K.

They not only rock the ACC, they make a presence on the road as well. Diehard fans have been spotted wearing Raptors jerseys wherever the team has played this season.

But come Friday, Raptors fans will face a new challenge — cheering on their team in Brooklyn in a playoff game. Some dedicated fans are making the trip to what's likely to be a hostile Barclays Center.

"We've just gotta represent our team," fan Burhan Ehsan said.

MLB. Tigers duo of Cabrera and Scherzer rocks rival White Sox

Miguel Cabrera drove in three runs, Max Scherzer struck out 10 and the Detroit Tigers beat the Chicago White Sox 7-4 Thursday.

Cabrera hit a pair of two-out singles for his RBIs. Rajai homered, doubled, singled and drove in two runs.

Scherzer (2-1) allowed two runs and seven hits in six innings, and was pulled with a high pitch count.

Joe Nathan pitched the ninth for his fourth save in six tries. He got the final two outs on a strikeout where Jose Abreu was called for interfering with catcher Bryan Holaday's throw to second base on a stolen-base attempt.

Jose Quintana (1-1) allowed three runs in six innings.

Tigers reliever Al Alburquerque pitched the seventh, but Joba Chamberlain allowed two runs in the eighth to let Chicago pull within one. Detroit scored twice in the bottom half. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

MLB. Sticky situation costs Pineda 10 games

New York Yankees pitcher Michael Pineda was suspended for 10 games by Major League Baseball on Thursday for using pine tar to help him grip the ball.

He said he won't appeal the penalty that will cost him two starts.

"I accept it," Pineda said before Thursday's game against the Boston Red Sox at Fenway Park. "I know I made a mistake."

Pineda was ejected in the second inning of Wednesday's 5-1 loss to Boston after umpires found the pine tar on his neck.

After the game, Pineda admitted he used the pine tar to help him grip the ball on a cool, windy night.

"I feel so bad," Pineda said on Thursday.

Pineda said he had never used pine tar before this season. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Caldwell brings calm approach to Lions

Jim Caldwell THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jim Caldwell has already made his mark as the new coach of the Detroit Lions.

Caldwell seems cool, calm and collected. He appears to be confident, but far from arrogant.

"We want to make certain that we identify ourselves, who are we and our identity," Caldwell said Thursday as the Lions wrapped up a three-day voluntary minicamp. "We're smart, we're fast and we're a physical team. "

So far, players like what they have seen and heard from their new coach. Matthew Stafford described Caldwell as "confident and level-headed."

"He has a lot of respect in that locker-room already," the starting quarterback said. "Just the way he carries himself, the way he talks about treating us and expecting the same kind of treatment in return."

For a franchise that has never earned a spot in a Super Bowl, having a coach who has been there three times seems to be a factor in his favour as he cultivates relationships. Caldwell lost a Super Bowl as Indianapolis' head coach and helped the Colts and Baltimore Ravens win NFL titles as an assistant coach.

"That's credibility," centre Dominic Raiola said. "He's a proven winner."
